DREAMFIELD

When I was younger and played in the field
I got a shiver when I looked in that street
It was very dark and there was no one to see
A frightened feeling became part of me
I didn't want to live there, didn't want there to be
It scared me and exactly didn't want it to see

To the end of the road I often did stare
It seemed like the world was holding up there
I didn't dare to walk through or go there by bike
This was a street which I really didn't like
I didn't want to live there, didn't want there to be
It scared me and exactly didn't want it to see

But then came the winter and it started to snow
The snowflocks fell down very quiet and real slow
An other kind of feeling took part of me now
The street looked more friendly I can't explain how

There was a fireroad, behind that street
I often biked through, or go through by feet
Only by daylight, then I wasn't too scared
But not through that street, oh no, I didn't dare it
I didn't want to live there, didn't want there to be
It scared me and exactly didn't want it to see bridge.

Now do I live there, who did that expect
There are now houses on that field at street's end
Still keep on hoping that nothing goes wrong
So far so good now, I made it so long
I hope that everything will gonna be fine
And luck and prosperity, soon will be mine
